Homemaker's Corner

Carpets of synthetic turf are a far cry from the indoor/outdoor carpets first introduced in the 1960s.

Olefin (polypropylene) is still the fiber used in synthetic turf carpets. Its popularity for many areas outside and inside the home is readily understandable because of the many inherent characteristics of the fiber. Olefin is sturdy and durable with super resistance to moisture and mildew. The fiber is nonabsorbent, colorfast, abrasive resistant, light in weight and static free, in addition to being resistant to permanent soil and stain, and is easily cleaned.

The special properties of olefin make it an excellent choice in terms of safety and comfort for outdoor areas such as decks, terraces, patios, walkways and around poolside areas. Boat owners also can enjoy the benefits as well, since the carpet is not damaged by water or weather.

Inside the home, the carpet may be used in the laundry room, playroom, basement, bathroom or kitchen.

From the conventional "grass look," the carpet has grown to include a selection of patterns including stripes, squares, geometrics and plaids. Colors run the spectrum from earthtones to the brightest reds.

Because synthetic turf is designed for both indoor and outdoor installations, it is important to read the label for recommended usage. The type of backing applied to the carpet is critical. Carpet coated with latex or other weather resistant material is designed for outdoor use. With a backing of sponge, foam or jute, the carpet is intended for indoor areas. However, consideration needs to be given to indoor installations. If a wooden floor, for example, is exposed to the weather or dampness, the carpet should not be used. Since the carpet retains water, any dampness or moisture could cause the wood to rot.

Perhaps one of the greatest advantages of synthetic turf is the ease of care. Outdoor carpets can be swept with a broom or deck brush to pick up surface litter. For washing, use a solution of detergent or an all purpose cleaner and water. Use a scrub brush and work the solution into the pile. Then rinse thoroughly with a garden hose.

Indoor carpet calls for frequent vacuuming. Spots and spills should be removed quickly and the carpet professionally or as a do-it-yourself project.
